Flour Bluff ISD to move all students to remote learning on Monday, February 15

Flour Bluff ISD will move all students to remote learning on Monday, February 15, due to forecasted wintery weather expected for our area Sunday evening and into Monday. We are making this decision for the safety of students and staff as well as to provide time for students to prepare to take part in remote instruction.

Campus administrators and teachers will provide students with additional details on resources needed for remote instruction on Monday and communicate this information with parents. Parents are asked to help their child prepare to take part in remote learning on Monday, February 15.

At this time, Tuesday, February 16, will be a regular school day. We will be watching the weather throughout the weekend and on Monday. If conditions do not improve, the District will communicate with parents on the instructional plans for Tuesday.

Curbside Meal pick-up is cancelled for Monday, February 15. It is expected to resume on Tuesday, February 16.

Flour Bluff ISD will provide additional updates via the District's website, District social media platforms and email to parents and staff.
